

INTERESTING EVENTS IN THE LOCAL SOCIAL WORLD

By MRS. FRANK N. NOBLE

FLAGSTAFF WOMAN'S CLUB HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS DEPT.

Last Saturday afternoon a most profitable time was spent in the department of Economics.

Mrs. J. E. Jones had prepared a most excellent paper on "Hot breads and Breakfast Foods." She spoke of the nutritive value of combining fruit with cereals and of the dependence upon the right flour and yeast for successful bread-making. Several receipts for hot breads were given.

Mrs. John Hennessy was quite deserving of the many compliments she received for the delicious muffins which she demonstrated on that afternoon. Following is the recipe used.

3 cups flour.
2 rounding teaspoons baking powder sifted together.

1/2 tea spoon salt.
2 eggs—whites and yolks beaten separately.

1 cup and a little more of milk.
Butter size of an egg melted and added just before the beaten whites. Bake in a moderate oven.

Guest Night of Shakespeare Club

Quite an event of the season was guest evening at the Shakespeare Club on last Friday night. Mrs. Honn's attractive home was given over to the club members in which to entertain their guests and at an early hour the festivities were well under way. A series of shadow pictures kept up a merry round of guessing, interspersed with song after which Mrs. Evans in original verse, told of the "Male Annex" of the club. Miss Blome next held the attention of the guests with a number of touching poems from the old masters. A thrilling hold up was then in order and the guests were compelled to pay heavy fines before the bold intruders departed. These fines were redeemed in unique ways by the owners causing much merriment. This very enjoyable evening was then completed by a delicious lunch served in cafeteria style and the guests departed with many pleasant memories of a delightful evening.

The Shakespeare Club met in short session last Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Milligan.

The first part of George Elliot's "Silas Marner" was taken up and synopsis of the chapters given by Mrs. E. F. Honn.

mal school joined them for dinner and a delightful trip to the Cliff dwellings.

James H. White, chief clerk in the Master Mechanic's office at Winslow, was married in Flagstaff Tuesday to Miss Constance Stratton, a former teacher in the Winslow high school. ### An Interesting Fashion Note

A tip to girls from the Fort Worth Star-Telegram: "The ankle bouquet, ankle watch, wrist pigeon and shoulder monkey are all right, but if a girl wishes to attract serious attention from young men of marriageable age she should drag a pan of biscuits along the sidewalk. A fad of this kind would be just as sensible as the others, and men might follow the biscuit to the altar."

HUBBARD DELIGHTS GOOD AUDIENCE HERE MONDAY

The performance of Mr. Havrah Hubbard and Mr. Wells Weston, at the Emerson school on Monday evening, October 18, will long remain in the memories of the people of Flagstaff.

To those who attended, was presented one of the most delightful performances ever given on the stage in Flagstaff. Mr. Hubbard talks, and Mr. Weston plays. Together they present a very realistic and interesting scene.

Monday night they chose Tannhauser to present to the audience. Mr. Hubbard made an introductory speech about Art, and explained how very much people seem to be afraid of it. He told his audience how little they need know of music to enjoy his talk, and told them how they had to imagine the setting of the stage to get the real good out of the story.

He then told the story of Tannhauser to the music played by Mr. Weston, holding his audience in a quiet spell for over an hour. Many of the Normal students were there, and they all expressed themselves as having a most enjoyable evening, and vowed to attend the first grand opera that they had a chance to see.

Hadn't Served it Before

Once a short little woman and her tall husband went to a cafe of the cheaper sort for dinner.
"Will you have oysters?" asked the husband, glancing over the bill of fare.

"Yes," said the little woman, as she tried in vain to touch her feet to the floor, "and, Henry, I want a hassock."

Henry nodded, and as he handed his order to the waiter, said: "Yes, and bring the lady a hassock."

"One hassock?" asked the waiter, with what Henry thought more than ordinary interest, as he nodded in the affirmative. Still the waiter did not go, but brushed the tablecloth with a towel and rearranged the articles on it several times, while his face got very red.

Then he came around to the husband's side, and, speaking in a whisper, said: "Say, Mister, I haven't been here long, and I'm not on to all these things. Will the lady have the hassock broiled or fried?"

Did He Put His Foot In It?

An English soldier, a member of the Second South Staffordshire Regiment, says that one bitterly cold night in the early spring he and his mates came out of the trenches. They were billeted in a barn, where they were packed in very close.

"Though numb with cold, we were soon asleep," said the soldier in telling the incident. "I was awakened in the night by one of our chaps trying to put his boots on. After he had been trying for a minute or two I heard the fellow next him say:

"What the — are you doing?"
"Putting my boots on," was the reply.
"Well, that's my foot, you fool!"

Missed Something

Mrs. McGreevy was a dinner guest one evening where a noted explorer was the attraction. Being of a somewhat languid turn of mind, she paid more attention to her dinner than to the conversation. After dinner was over, she turned to one of the guests and asked:

"What was that tiresome old explorer talking about?"
"Progressive Patagonia," was the reply.

"Really?" asked Mrs. McGreevy with sudden interest. "And how do you play it?"

Where Psyche Was Executed

A New York man was recently acting as guide through an art gallery for a friend from the country. As they paused before a statuette, the guide said:

"That is Psyche. Executed in terra cotta."

"What a pity!" said the rural one. "How barbarous they are in those South American countries."

Explanation

"Willie, did you tie that tin can to the dog's tail?"

"Yes, Sir," replied the small boy. "I'm trying to do a kind act every day. That dog chases every rabbit he sees. I tied the can to him so that it will make a noise and warn the rabbit."

CATTLEMEN MEET WITH FOREST SERVICE OFFICIALS

The Advisory Committee of the Arizona Cattle Growers' Association and the Forest officials of the district met last Monday at the Adams Hotel in Phoenix. Some of the best grazing land in Arizona and New Mexico is within the boundaries of the National Forests, and the livestock growers have found that the regulations of the National Forests have been beneficial rather than otherwise. Some problems arise, however, which require changes in the regulations, and for the purpose of thoroughly discussing these matters an Advisory Committee of the state association is appointed to consult with Forest officials, once each year, and to discuss matters that have come up during the year, which would indicate the advisability of a change in the regulations.

Among the present at this meeting were John Kerr, E. N. Cavanaugh, J. D. Guthrie and C. H. Hinderer of the Forest Service, and Jack Crabb, president of the Coconino Cattle Growers' Association, Flagstaff; F. A. Reid of Seligman; Fen Hildreth, Phoenix; J. W. Sullivan, Seligman; W. W. Cooke, Phoenix; M. B. Hazeltine, Prescott; Levi Young, Phoenix; Sam Bradner, Phoenix; L. L. Harmon, Phoenix, and W. W. Moore, Phoenix.

The meeting was harmonious throughout, and many matters of vital importance to stockmen were discussed. One of the most important matters to come up was the question of whether it is just to permit acreage holdings in irrigated section to become the basis for issuing permits inside the Forest Reserve. It was brought out that there are some sections of irrigated land which are contiguous to the Forest Reserve, and the owners of which were dependent upon the grazing privilege, but it was the unanimous opinion of the cattlemen present that in future, permits should not be issued on such basis where it is well understood that there is no Forest range in close proximity.—Southwestern Stockman.

GOVERNMENT DOES VERY WELL DURING PAST YEAR

The district forester's office at Albuquerque for District No. 3, which includes Arizona and New Mexico gives out the following report on receipts from the people during the past year:

Statement of receipts from national forests for the period, July 1 to September 30, 1915, shows that District 3 ranks first in receipts for grazing cattle and horses, second in receipts for special use, third in receipts for water power, and fourth in receipts for timber sales. The district ranks fourth in total receipts, which is a decrease of $4,854.65 from receipts for the same period last year. The total receipts for the above period were $63,075.34.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

We are pleased to announce that Mrs. Beeson was a welcome visitor in the first grade room last Tuesday. We would be pleased to have more parents visit us.

Fred Wheeler and Irene Frederick of the second grade stood 100% in spelling every day for the past three weeks.

The upper grades are going to give the operetta "On Plymouth Rock" by Jessie Gaynor. Watch for the date.

The boys of the Manual Training department are making several kitchen cabinets and other large pieces. They hope to have many pieces done by Christmas.

The Domestic Science girls are progressing rapidly in cooking and sewing. This week they have made apple, pumpkin, apricot and raisin pies and muffins. The writer sampled their products and can vouch for the good quality of the same. The sewing classes are making pillow slips. We are trying to make the classes more practical every year.

The eighth grade has now 20 active members. In the U. S. history they are fighting the French and Indian wars and in arithmetic they are fighting ratio. They say it is hard to tell which is the harder.

In the seventh grade Julia Benson, Edna Spencer, Beatrice Smith, Elva Howell, and Effie Allsup stood 100% in spelling for the past week and Effie Allsup and Kathryn Keller stood 100% in arithmetic for the same period.

Did He?

After the clock struck eleven, the peevish father strode to the top of the stairs and called down:

"Mabel, doesn't that young man know how to say 'good night'?"

"Does he?" echoed Mabel from the darkened hall below. "Well, I should say he does!"
